

MODERN PAINTERS DAILY

Framing contemporary art & culture

JULY 25, 2012, 7:49 PM

31 Women in Art Photography

Tomorrow night, don't miss the opening of "31 Women In Art Photography" at Hasted Kraeutler in New York and presented by Humble Arts Foundation. (We're only slightly upset that they went with a straightforward title, bucking the trend of cheekily-monikered all-female exhibitions.) Among the women artists included are the ever-excellent Aneta Bartos, whose Pond, 2009, is above. "The image is from 'Morning Dusk', which is a series of young female portraits presented in sequences of dreams of an eerie, fairy tale like scene of maturity and corruption," says Bartos. "It's Alice in Wonderland-like, where everything on the surface is beautiful and decadent but there is something tragic lurking beneath." (Bartos has a way with female models, but she's shot both genders, including a series of self-pleasuring men that is definitely NSFW.)

Search Blog

EXPLORE OUR BLOGS

The Cutting Room I by Graham Fuller*Master of the Mordant Needed to Play Comic Bi...*

Film

Market Watch I by BLOUIN ARTINFO*Russian Oil Magnate Awarded £1.7 Million Refu...*

Market News

Play By Play I by Pat Pacheco*Henry Winkler Takes Ron Jeremy-Inspired Role ...*

Performing Arts

Object Lessons I by Janelle Zara*The Problem With Art...*

Art & Culture

Culinary Insiders I by Lisa Mamounas*Art Collectors May Pine For Picasso, But What...*

Food & Art